“Your Vision, Your Dream”

Louie’s motto “Your Vision, Your Dream” is certainly something he can personally identify with.

Originally from South Africa, he envisioned a dream of a better life with more opportunities for his wife and young daughter. After a lot of research and great faith, the decision was made to begin a new life in the United States, thus fulfilling their dream of a brighter future.

Along this journey, he came to meet Mona Phillips, Owner of Elite Realty Group in Antioch when she represented them in the purchase of the family’s home in San Joaquin County. She was a very positive influence during this important chapter of their new lives.

During this time, Mona recognized that Louie had all the characteristics necessary to work hard and become very successful. With his extensive background in sales and marketing for a yacht brokerage and a well know winery, his experience and personality were well suited for the real estate industry. She encouraged him to use these talents and consider becoming a real estate professional.

Louie once again prepared for a new adventure and in 2008 he received his license. Currently working with Mona as his mentor at Elite Realty Group, his future indeed looks bright.

One of his most important goals is to cultivate business relationships into friendships with his clients. He feels it is his responsibility to safeguard and help them through the process of a transaction with their best interest in mind by listening to what they say and paying attention to detail. It’s not about him – it’s about his clients.

“If I can touch someone in a positive way as was done for me, that is my reward” said Louie.
